. SPEAKERS REVIEW by Pat Barron

Fruit Sale

Two new members gave their classification talks: Mark Nelson and Nathan Keisler.

Mark Nelson is nothing if not punctual. He was told to limit his classification talk to ten minutes and that is exactly what he did. (Good for you, Mark. It takes Matt Holliday that long to clear his throat!) Mark was born in Baltimore in 1957, where his father was employed by the United Way. The family moved frequently, including a stop at Springfield, Delaware County. At his own admission Mark was no Boy Scout at Susquehanna University, where he majored girls, drinking, and having a good time. But he did manage to graduate and found his calling as a bond trader and financial advisor. After a thirty-three-year career Mark retired early from Merrill Lynch in order to care for his wife, who had to undergo disabling foot surgery. Mark has a wonderful sense of humor, sort of on the Rodney Dangerfield level. Welcome to the club, Mark!

Nathan Keisler grew up in Florida, where he enjoyed a boyhood of outdoor adventures. He graduated from the University of Florida (Go 'Gators!) with a civil engineering degree. Nathan looked for a life of adventure combined with helping others develop their potential. He found that life in Africa, where he managed infrastructure projects and was regional manager of not-for-profits. In ten years Nathan and his family visited thirty countries before returning to the States in 2016. Currently Nathan is a minister with Christ Community Church. He recently founded his own business, called Mastering Connections, where he helps individuals find their strength to achieve their dreams and helps businesses partner with employees for mutual success. So, if you need help finding the strength to keep that New Year's resolution, Nathan is the guy to see. Welcome to the club, Nathan!
